Some Common Uses - Grape seeds contain a powerful class of antioxidants called proanthocyanidins that help protect your cells against oxidative damage. Treatment with grape seed oil extract is purported to help protect your heart by lowering "bad" LDL cholesterol and reducing high blood pressure levels. However, additional research in humans is necessary to further support these reported benefits of grape seed oil extract. The use of this supplement may also help reduce excessive tissue swelling, called edema, and chronic venous insufficiency, a condition characterized by swelling, pain and visible veins in the legs. Grape seed oil extract may help control blood sugar levels, treat hemorrhoids, improve night vision and protect the skin against normal aging (good for massage therapy).
